CALL TO ACTION: SHOW UP FOR KHAILA & IRIS!

Press Conference & Court Hearing – March 17 | San Diego, CA

San Diego, CA – The legal system has once again failed to protect a Black mother and child, criminalizing Khaila Crum instead of shielding her and her daughter, Iris Crum, from harm. On February 26, Khaila was taken into custody in San Diego Family Court on a Tennessee warrant—a move pushed by the Crum family’s attorney, who pressured the prosecutor to reopen a case after the California charges were dismissed and about a matter that should have been closed. Now, she is facing extradition to Tennessee, a state that has already failed Iris and refused to hold her abusers accountable.

Despite Khaila’s wrongful detainment, neither the courts nor the custodial family know Iris’s whereabouts or medical condition. Where is Iris? Who is ensuring her safety? The state has stripped Khaila of her right to protect her child, and instead of investigating the abuse and fraud upon the court, they are railroading a Black mother into a legal battle designed to break her.

During Women’s History Month, we must resist the state’s ongoing attack on African women! This fight is bigger than Khaila and Iris. The state’s attack on Black motherhood is a direct assault on our families, our autonomy, and our right to protect our children. We must stand up and demand justice!
